International Market Wrap

The S&P 500 limped into the final trading day of May as data showed the engine of the American economy rapidly decelerated last month. Trump's announcement Thursday that he'd address the press on China rattled equities late in that session, but signs that he'll stop short of upending the American trade status with Hong Kong eased nerves ahead of his comments Friday. Tech shares edged higher. The Stoxx Europe 600 Index declined for the first time in five days, dragged lower by travel shares and automakers. The euro extended gains after the region's inflation rate fell to the lowest in four years, adding to reasons for authorities to expand monetary stimulus.

Local News

The airport in the Namibian harbour town of Walvis Bay has closed after two residents tested positive for the coronavirus and the economic hub went into lockdown. The airport would be closed for seven days, manager Chrizelda George told media on Sunday. A third Walvis Bay resident, a colleague of one of the patients, has since tested positive, bringing the total infections nationwide to just 24 with no deaths. Other airports in the country will still allow domestic flights as scheduled and for emergency evacuations. Namibia's flag carrier, Air Namibia, has also suspended all flights in and out of Walvis Bay until June 8. Most of the desert nation in southwest Africa, which has received international praise after recording so few cases, will ease restrictions from Tuesday. – Reuters

The Namibia Employers Federation (NEF) on Friday said President Hage Geingob had no business replacing the existing labour law with a proclamation which prohibits retrenchments due to the coronavirus impact. The president, health and labour ministries and attorney-general's office were represented by Jean Marais and Sisa Namandje. The employers have dragged government to court over regulations that include a ban on retrenchments until at least 28 days after the national coronavirus lockdown ends. Arguing on behalf of the employers, Raymond Heathcote said the labour law gives workers who felt they were unfairly dismissed the opportunity to approach the court on an urgent basis. "People can go to court, the High Court, if they were fired in bunches. The laws remain, the president does not have free power to do as he pleases. Of course, he can regulate, but he cannot suspend laws," he said. - Namibian Sun

Sea Flower Pelagic Processing is forging ahead with its planned commissioning of a canning factory at their land-based processing plant in Walvis Bay by the third and fourth quarter of this year. To achieve this milestone on the road to become the largest onshore processing plant of especially horse mackerel in Sub-Saharan Africa, the company are now recruiting 450 workers for their cannery plant to be trained prior to commissioning. In a strained economy and in the shadow of labour lay-offs following the outbreak of Covid-19, this is good news for Namibia. True to the values and aims set out in the 5th National Development Plan (NDP5), these prospective employees will mostly be drawn from previously disadvantaged communities. The completion of the giant new Seaflower Pelagic Processing land-based fish factory in Walvis Bay at a cost of N$530 million represents the single biggest investment in the Namibian fishing industry in recent history. - Namibian Sun

The Northern Regional Electricity Distributor (Nored) has halted all new electrical connections until further notice due to the unavailability and inadequate supply of materials. The company says it is experiencing difficulties with acquiring key electrical equipment and materials used for consumer electricity connections, due to the effects of the Covid-19 pandemic. Nored spokesperson Simon Lukas in an interview with The Namibian said there are currently challenges in the manufacturing, supply and delivery of electrical goods from suppliers as many of them had to abide by Covid-19 measures implemented in their respective countries. "We do not have all the required equipment to carry out new connections. The equipment that we currently have in stock will be reserved for maintenance purposes only. We apologise for the inconvenience caused as a result," he said. Lukas further noted that Covid-19 has affected Nored's ability to carry out new customers' electricity connections and subsequently the company's efforts to carry out its mandate overall. - The Namibian

SA Economic News

The head of economic transformation in South Africa's ruling party proposed a range of measures to bolster the economy, ranging from encouraging the use of pension funds and the central bank to finance infrastructure spending to the creation of a state bank and pharmaceutical company. Enoch Godongwana's recommendations to the African National Congress come as the government tries to revive an economy devastated by the coronavirus pandemic. "The Covid-19 shock is posing unprecedented challenges, the economic crisis entailed by the pandemic is unique," Godongwana said in the 22 May document seen by Bloomberg. "Globally, central banks have reverted to their original role as bankers to their governments." While business and investors have been calling for strong government action to support Africa's most-industrialized economy, the document may heighten concerns about state intervention and so-called prescribed investment -- mandatory funding by private companies of certain sectors.

Company News

Reinet, the investment company controlled and managed by chair Johann Rupert, has finished its 2020 financial year with a marked shift in the balance of its portfolio. The results to the end of March released on Friday show that Reinet's core holding in global cigarette business British American Tobacco (BAT) accounted for only 40.6% of the €4.4bn (about R86bn) portfolio. At the end of March 2019, BAT represented more than 52% of the portfolio value, and at some points in previous years comprised almost 80% of the value. -Business Day
South Africa's Old Mutual has made "good progress" on its search for a new CEO and hopes to make an announcement soon, Chairman Trevor Manuel told the insurer's virtual annual general meeting on Friday. The 175-year-old insurer has been led by acting CEO Iain Williamson since the abrupt sacking of ex-CEO Peter Moyo in June last year. -Moneyweb

Financial services group Liberty Life has joined a number of SA companies warning of a big hit to earnings as the impact of the coronavirus pandemic and lockdown hits the economy. The insurer released a trading update earlier in May and explained that the weakening economy and exchange rate, lower investment returns, increased mortality and declining rental income in its property arm were expected to dent its income. Liberty said on Friday it is expecting profits to drop by more than 20%, both when it reports its six-month financials to end June and full-year results to end December 2020. The warning was given a day after insurer Old Mutual issued guidance that its headline earning per share for the six months to June 2020 was expected to be 20% lower than the 2019 period. - Business Day

Infrastructure development group Raubex is banking on the government's R500bn stimulus package to kick-start the local economy and help get the more than R20bn of projects it has tendered for off the ground. The company says it has tendered for about R22bn of work between October 2019 and March 2020 in the road construction sector. On Friday, Raubex told shareholders that the timing of certain awards could be delayed due to the effect of the Covid-19 lockdown. However, "it is hoped that the social relief and economic support package of R500bn announced by the SA government" in April, including a substantial infrastructure build programme as part of its economic recovery strategy will help to get things going. - Business Day

Technology company Huge Group reported an 11% rise operating profit on Friday of R135m for the year ended February 2020. As revenue increased by 14% to R492m from R433m, the company's earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation (ebitda) increased by 20% from R149m to R178m. Basic earnings per share increased by 1% from 56.84c per share to 57.58c for the period. Headline earnings per share increased 2% from 55.81c per share in the previous year to 57.03c. Because of the uncertainty around Covid-19, the group said it has decided not to declare a dividend for the period, as a way to preserve cash. -Business Day

SADC

Angola is in talks with key lenders to reschedule debt payments after a prolonged recession triggered by a drop in crude prices raised concerns about the sustainability of the African nation's finances. The discussions have resumed after an interruption of about three months due to the Covid-19 pandemic, President Joao Lourenco said in a speech broadcast on state-controlled RNA Radio on Friday. He didn't give details about the loans or specify if the talks included Eurobonds. "The government started the renegotiation of our sovereign and commercial debt with the main credit institutions of Angola," Lourenco said. "The results will be known in due course." Measures to fight the pandemic and a collapse in oil prices are expected to lead to a fifth consecutive annual contraction for the southwest African nation's economy. Angola is the continent's second-biggest crude producer and the fuel accounts for almost 90% of its exports.
