After the asset management unit, to be renamed Ninety One, is unbundled, about 55.9% of its total issued share capital will be held by Investec ordinary shareholders, the company said in a statement. Investec had first announced the demerger plan in September 2018, maintaining it will simplify the businesses and enhance their long-term prospects. "We continue to make good progress with respect to the proposed demerger and listing of Ninety One," said joint CEOs Fani Titi and Hendrik du Toit in the statement. – Business Day SA's third-largest mobile operator Cell C has rejected a takeover offer from Telkom. The offer was rejected by Cell C's board of directors, Telkom said on Friday, adding that it continued to believe the offer was "a compelling proposition that would have created significant value for all stakeholders including Telkom's shareholders." Telkom had confirmed market speculation about the potential acquisition earlier in November, with the group focusing heavily on mobile operations. Telkom, which grew its own subscriber base by 85% in the past financial year to 9.7-million, has been working to transform its business away from fixed-line provision to a data services player. It had increased its subscribers to 11.5-million by the end of September. – Business Day |
| Local News Bulldozing days over. Swapo's tight stranglehold on parliament has been broken following the release of the seventh Presidential and National Assembly election results, ending its power to amend and change the country's constitution. Swapo lost its two-thirds majority for the first time since 1994 after it got 65% of the vote, translating to 63 seats in the lower house of parliament. The party received 80% in the last election in 2014, winning itself 77 seats out of the total of 96. It marks the first time that the party's stronghold on parliament has been removed since 1994, when it gained its first two-thirds majority. Without its two-thirds majority, Swapo will not be able to amend the constitution like it did in 1999, when it gave former president Sam Nujoma an additional term in office. It will also not be able to force through constitutional amendments like it did in 2014 that allowed for the creation of the vice-president position. – Namibian Sun Blind Government policies stifle tourism sector. The government's policies, regulations and limited knowledge of the tourism sector hamper the industry's growth and prevent the introduction of new products. This was the view of the director of tourism in the Ministry of Environment and Tourism, Sem Shikongo, when responding to the findings of a study carried out to introduce products such as seal meat into the local market, as resource which is currently going to waste. "Within the public sector, there is also need to talk among ourselves because my years in tourism have made me come to realise that the problem lies not so much with the private sector, but with officials in the government. Because sometimes we are regulating a sector that we do not understand," he said. – The Namibian New board challenged to take MTC higher. Information minister Stanley Simataa on Friday urged the newly appointed MTC Namibia board to maintain or improve the company's current performance levels, while ensuring that the stock exchange listing process is conducted smoothly. He said this while announcing the new board members, whom he urged to lead MTC on merit and ensure effective governance. The board will serve for the next three years. "As the new board, you are aware that MTC is currently involved in a crucial and delicate process of listing its shares on the stock exchange, and you are aware that this is the first state-owned enterprise (SOE) that government as a shareholder will be offloading shares [of] on the Namibia Stock Exchange, and in doing so, encourage Namibian individuals and institutions to invest in this very progressive and dynamic enterprise," Simataa stated. – The Namibian | Sugar producer Tongaat Hulett said on Friday it was engaging with authorities and would be pursuing claims against 10 executives, after a PwC probe identified a number of undesirable accounting practices. The PwC investigation identified practices that led to revenue being recognised in earlier reporting periods than it should have been, and expenses being inappropriately capitalised to assets. This had led to overstatement of profits, while there was a "culture of deference" that resulted in employees not questioning accounting practices, the company said statement of key findings of the probe. – Business Day |
| SA Economic News None. | SADC The Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe maintains key rate as it sees inflation easing in November, the Monetary Policy Committee says in a statement. The 2020 budget has a potential expansionary impact on money supply, which limits the scope for tightening of monetary policy. Introduction of additional bank notes has resulted in decline in cash premiums. Latest framework for foreign-exchange dealers "has been well received by the market" |
