Over 9% of Namibians at the mercy of loan sharks. As at the end of March this year, 229,990 Namibians were indebted to micro-lenders (cash loans) and owed a whopping N$6.8 billion. Between January and March alone, micro-lenders disbursed over N$978 million in loans. These rather worrying numbers were released by the Namibia Financial Institutions Supervisory Authority (Namfisa) recently and portray a country that is painted with borrowers. The 299,990 people are at least 9% of Namibia's 2.5 million population. According to Namfisa, they saw a 21.4% increase between January and March this year alone, with 40,543 people bailed out by microlenders during the quarter. Lenders were extended over 134,391 loan contracts, Namfisa said. - The Namibian

Dairy sector on its knees. The long-feared collapse of the Namibian dairy industry seems to be one step closer to reality, with only seven producers remaining in the sector. Two more dairy producers recently announced their retirement effective from the end of July. Kokkie Adriaanse, chairman of the Dairy Producers Association, is one of them, while Christo Strydom, management member of the association, is another. The seven remaining milk producers includes Namibia Dairies' Superfarm at Mariental. In the year 2000, the industry was still strong, with 45 producers. According to the Namibia Agricultural Union (NAU), in 2019 raw milk production stood at 21 million litres, decreasing to 17 million litres in 2020, while only 12 million litres is expected this year. - Namibian Sun

Rain only expected in November. Little to no rainfall is expected for spring, while outlooks are positive for summer rainfall starting from about November. This is according to Santam climatologist Johan van den Berg, who added that temperatures will still be below average until at least the second part of August, especially minimum temperatures, while frost may occur until the end of the month. He explained that the probability for La Niña development has increased and there is an about 60 to 70% probability that it will develop from September to October. "This is positive for summer rainfall." – Namibian Sun

Water potential in irrigation sector not utilised. The demand for water in the irrigation sector is expected to reach nearly 500 million cubic metres by 2030, while the sector has the potential to use almost 300 million cubic metres more water per year than it does currently. In addition, for the greater Namibia, potentially a billion cubic metres of water is available annually, but the necessary infrastructure must first be developed to utilise it. At present, the national demand is about 334.1 million cubic metres of water per year. This is according to Maria Amakali, the director for water management in the agriculture ministry and the acting deputy executive director in the water department, who added that water is a key driving force within a food system. - Namibian Sun

Company News Shares in AngloGold Ashanti slumped more than 10% on Friday after it trimmed its 2021 production estimate and posted a 10% drop in headline first-half earnings due to the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic and increased bullion mining costs. Africa's top gold producer revised its full year production guidance to 2.4-2.6 million ounces in 2021 against an earlier target of 2.7-2.9 million ounces, citing the suspension of underground mining activities at the Obuasi Mine in Ghana following a fatal accident in May. - Bloomberg

Damage to banks and ATMs during July's violence and looting will cost up to R1.5bn to repair, the Banking Association SA (Basa) said on Saturday. Banks are still working on infrastructure recovery plans in Gauteng and KwaZulu-Natal, the association said in a statement, adding that 1,400 ATMs and 269 bank branches were vandalised or destroyed. "An indicative average replacement cost of an ATM in SA is R385,000, with additional installation costs," Basa said. "These costs can vary greatly for any individual ATM and not every vandalised ATM will need to be replaced. "Banks will likely have to rebuild almost 200 branches. At this time the average indicative cost for rebuilding a branch is estimated to be R4.3m. There will also be additional operational costs to get a branch back into full service." - Business

EOH Holdings is in "advanced negotiations" with the department of water affairs & sanitation over compensation related to four dodgy contracts awarded to the IT services company worth R474-million. These legacy contracts are part of the suspicious public sector contracts uncovered by EOH and law firm ENSafrica into corruption in the JSE-listed group's dealings with government agencies and departments under the former management team led, some of whom are being pursued civilly by the group for billions of rand in damages. - Moneyweb

Nedbank kicks off the big four banks' reporting season on Wednesday and it's already signalled that its earnings will be even better than the banking group or the market expect - a trend that could be followed as its rivals report in coming weeks. It's the "base effects" that are the big driver, with the six months to June this year set against six months that last year included hard lockdown, when the banks' transaction volumes crashed and they had to provide massively for debts they expected to go bad. – Business Day

SA Economic News

South Africa's new Finance Minister Enoch Godongwana says he prefers state funds be used to create jobs for unemployed youth instead of a proposed basic income grant, Sunday Times newspaper reports. A basic income would create dependency and not address the fundamental issues at the core of unemployment, Godongwana said in an interview with the Johannesburg-based Sunday Times.

To promote Victoria Falls as a safe destination, the Zimbabwean government has made vaccines available to all 35,000 residents of the town that shares a name with the waterfall.
