Local News

ACCOUNTANT Paulus Ngalangi co-owns a company that won a N$300 million contract to evaluate diamonds for the Namibian government. The Central Procurement Board awarded the company, Gem Diamonds, a five-year contract to ensure that government diamonds are correctly priced by Namdeb. Ngalangi, who is also Fishcor's finance general manager, was brought into Gem Diamonds on the premise that he would inject N$5 million into the company's bid for the tender. Now moves are afoot at Gem Diamonds to oust him. The tender award itself is contentious and is the subject of a High Court case, while officials have kept the ownership of the company under wraps. – The Namibian

The Namibia Port Authority will need to spend approximately N$1 billion to allow vessels larger than 9,000 twenty-foot equivalent units (TEU) to use the new container terminal facility inaugurated last year. Namport's funding needs were expressed in a letter to transport ministry executive director Willem Goeiemann by its acting CEO Kavin Harry last year. In the letter, Harry outlines Namport's funding requirements to treasury over the medium expenditure framework period for 2020/20 to 2022/23. This after Namport's N$4.2 billion investment for the construction of the container terminal facility. "Larger container vessels calling at our ports necessitate significant capital investment to expand infrastructure to accommodate such vessels. The required dredging would require funding of approximately N$1 billion," Harry wrote. – Namibian Sun

State House yesterday said it would only respond to demands of organised groups bearing representation of a spectrum of society, amid calls for President Hage Geingob to step down. Presidential spokesperson Alfredo Hengari – publicly reacting for the first time to the ongoing demonstrations against President Geingob being sworn in for his second term next week – said Namibia is an organised democracy where leaders are elected to speak on behalf of the electorate. Demonstrators, led mostly by leaders of the Affirmative Repositioning (AR) movement, converged in Windhoek and Walvis Bay to demand that Geingob steps down, alternatively that a rerun of last year's general election be ordered. These demands follow the Supreme Court ruling that the use of electronic voting machines (EVMs) in the 2019 presidential elections was unconstitutional. – Namibian Sun

The Mineworkers Union of Namibia (MUN) Rössing branch is planning to go on strike if CNNC (China National Nuclear Corporation) Rössing Uranium does not meet their wage demands. This was announced by MUN Rössing branch chairperson Johannes Hamutenya at a press conference aimed at providing an update of the 2020 wage negotiations with CNNC Rössing Uranium Limited. "After two conciliation attempts, a certificate of unresolved dispute of interest was issued by the Office of the Labour Commissioner on 3 March. At Thursday's general meeting, the employees unanimously gave a mandate for MUN leadership to prepare a strike," said Hamutenya. Although the chairperson chose not to disclose what MUN's demands from CNNC Rössing's management are, he said many promises were made by CNNC before their acquisition of the mine, but Rössing management's political and diplomatic stunts have started to emerge less than a year after the Chinese nuclear giant's takeover. – Namibian Sun

NamWater CEO Abraham Nehemia has declared that with the recent good rainfall received in the three main supply dams feeding water to the central areas including Windhoek, Gobabis and Karibib - the drought experienced over the past few years is over for now. Nehemia stated there will also be a bit of relaxation on water restrictions for now, although he was unable to say for how long this will last. He said they intend to have a post-rainy season meeting with the City of Windhoek to do an assessment on what should be done and inform the public. – New Era

SA Economic News

South Africa's parliament last week passed the Border Management Authority Bill which seeks to streamline operations at its ports of entry at the same time enhancing efficiency. The development comes a few weeks after Pretoria undertook to modernise some of its ports of entry among them Beitbridge where the One-Stop-Border-Post (OSBP) concept is set to be jointly implemented with Zimbabwe. The Herald understands that streamlining operations at Beitbridge and upgrading infrastructure is one of the major ingredients to the successful implementation of the OSBP. It is envisaged that under the model people and trucks will be processed by both countries under one roof. Currently, people and cargo have to duplicate processes to enter the ports of entries. An average of 14,000 people use the Beitbridge border post daily. – The Herald

Company News

Smarting from the downgrade to junk by Moody's Investors Service and cost overruns at its giant Lake Charles plant, Sasol had its worst day on the JSE on Monday when a dramatic slide in oil prices wiped out more than R47bn from its market value. Shares in the world's biggest maker of fuel from coal and gas plunged 46.5% to R85.35 in a selling frenzy triggered by a free-falling oil price after Saudi Arabia instigated an oil price war with Russia at the weekend. In the sharpest drop since the 1991 Gulf war, Brent crude, the global benchmark, dived more than 30% at one stage on Monday to a low of $31 a barrel. "For the domestic economy, we'll obviously benefit from lower oil prices as the fuel price will come down, which will have a knock-on effect, but Sasol and other companies are going to struggle with those kind of prices," said Unum Capital private client trader Rob Pietropaolo. – Business Day

Five Roses tea and Bakers biscuits parent company AVI battled a tough trading environment, worsened by load shedding, and price competition, to report lower headline earnings. The food and beverages company on Monday released its interim results for the half-year ended December 31, 2019. Headline earnings per share declined 3.8% to 293.8 cents, in line with analysts expectations. Revenue grew by a mere 1% to R7.1 billion. Operating profit increased R1.46 billion, only 0.1% higher than the previous year and not enough to offset higher finance costs and lower joint venture income. The group declared an interim dividend of 160 cents per share, which is 3% lower than last year's dividend. – Fin24

Mining company Assore will buy out minority shareholders and delist from the JSE after 70 years on the bourse, it says. The tightly held company, which produces iron ore, manganese and chrome, has been trading on the JSE since 1950 but has decided to delist for the sake of institutional shareholders who cannot easily trade shares because of its low liquidity. Assore is 52.4% held by Oresteel Investments, which is owned by the Sacco family and Japan's Sumitomo Corporation, 26.1% by the BEE entity, with the remaining 21.5% free float being held by various minorities. Of this small free float, 4.1% is held by various members of the Sacco family in their individual capacities, leaving only 17.4% as a "true" minority free float. –Business Day

Infrastructure development group Raubex said on Monday that it expected to report a more than 70% increase in earnings for the year to February 2020 due to profits from property sales. The company also attributed the performance to its decision to "rightsize" the business, which is starting to bear fruit. The company said earnings per share were expected to be at least 325% higher, which translates to at least 103.7c higher than the 31.9c in the previous comparative period. At the same time, headline earnings per share (HEPS) are expected to increase by at least 42.8c from 57.0c in the previous comparative period, a rise of at least 75%, the company said. This comes as the group said last week that it had sold its property interests for R383m to private equity firm Acorn Black Investments (ABI). –Business Day

After acquiring local insurance company Stangen from JSE-listed investment holding company African Phoenix for R140m, King Price plans to expand into Europe. A move into Europe will provide it with a new avenue for its growth. "We are busy working on a European acquisition in the short-term insurance industry, which we think will be able to deliver growth on a par or even exceeding what we have enjoyed in SA," says King Price CEO Gideon Galloway. The acquisition, as with Stangen, will be small and will be funded from existing resources. Galloway says a listing is not on the cards. –Business Day

SADC

Angola's long-term issuer default rating was downgraded by Fitch to B- from B.

Angola's plan to issue a fourth mobile-phone license has been thrown into doubt after the preferred bidder threatened to withdraw from the process over what it calls a lack of transparency regarding actions by the state provider. Africell, a Beruit-based company with operations in sub-Saharan African countries including Sierra Leone and Uganda, objects to the way Angola Telecom subletted wireless rights to Egypt's Orascom, according to Chief Investment Officer Ian Paterson. The move involved "extremely opaque discussions outside of any formal process," he said in an interview in Luanda, Angola's capital.
