Electricity, construction growth expected to moderate. Namibia's electricity and water subsector is expected to remain a key contributor to secondary industry growth in 2026, although its growth rate is projected to slow significantly from the strong performance recorded last year, according to the Bank of Namibia's August 2026 Economic Outlook. The subsector grew by 12.6% in 2025 but is projected to expand by 4.9% in 2026 before moderating further to 3.5% in 2027. The central bank attributed the slowing growth trajectory partly to the anticipated impact of El Niño. Despite the moderation, the subsector is expected to remain resilient, supported by hydroelectric generation from existing power stations and increasing contributions from solar power projects. According to the outlook, the growing contribution of solar generation is expected to reduce Namibia's reliance on electricity imports over the medium term. Construction activity is also expected to moderate substantially in 2026 following exceptionally strong growth in 2025. – Windhoek Observer

Africa Online, Radio Electronic explore satellite broadband expansion for Namibia. Africa Online and Radio Electronic (Pty) Ltd have signed a Letter of Intent (LOI) to assess the deployment of OneWeb's Low Earth Orbit (LEO) satellite technology to expand broadband connectivity across Namibia, particularly in underserved rural and remote areas. The agreement, signed by Africa Online Managing Director Ingram van Heerden and Radio Electronic Chief Executive Officer Francois du Toit, establishes a framework for evaluating the technical, commercial and operational viability of satellite-enabled broadband services that complement Namibia's existing telecommunications infrastructure. The initiative aims to address connectivity gaps in areas where fibre and other terrestrial networks remain difficult or uneconomical to deploy. – The Brief

UNAM tasked with turning green hydrogen research into businesses and industries. Vice President Lucia Witbooi has challenged the University of Namibia (UNAM) to convert green hydrogen research into commercially viable technologies, businesses and industries, saying scientific innovation must translate into economic growth and industrial development. Speaking at the launch of the REALTEST Green Hydrogen Research Project at UNAM's main campus in Windhoek on Monday, Witbooi said Namibia's ambitions should extend beyond producing green hydrogen to building knowledge-driven industries powered by local research and innovation. – The Brief

SA Economic News

Manufacturing output's fall of 1.7% in June likely to weigh on GDP. Food and beverages lead declines while manufacturers contend with higher input costs. Manufacturing production fell 1.7% year on year in June after an upwardly revised 4.4% contraction in May, with output dropping significantly in the food and beverages division, Stats SA said on Tuesday. The data confirmed another shrinkage in the industry in the second quarter of 2026 after declining in the first, suggesting it will be another dampener on GDP growth for the period. Like other sectors of the economy, manufacturers are grappling with higher input costs largely driven by more expensive fuel as a result of the Middle East war. – Business Day

New chrome findings reshape Southern Palladium's Bengwenyama plans. Work on the mine, including the box cut and decline, will start this year. Southern Palladium is revising the design of the processing plant for its Bengwenyama PGM-chrome project after tests showed the operation could produce nearly three times more chrome from the ore than previously expected. The higher expectation has prompted the company to take more time to finalise its definitive feasibility study (DFS), which sets out how the mine will be built, operated and financed. The study is now expected in the first quarter of 2027. The revised design will include a dense media separation (DMS) process to separate chrome-bearing material from waste. – Business Day

Tanzania relaxes Forex rules to draw foreigners to bonds. Tanzania is altering its foreign-exchange laws to allow non-residents to participate in government-securities auctions. Until now, only Tanzanians abroad and nationals of the Southern African Development Community and the East African Community could invest in Tanzania's domestic market. "The reform aims to broaden access to the government-securities market and is part of the bank's ongoing efforts to deepen the domestic financial markets and promote Tanzania as an attractive investment destination," the Bank of Tanzania said in a notice.
