International Market Wrap

Treasuries edged lower and Asian bonds followed as a rally in oil prices fuelled inflation concerns and strengthened bets on a Federal Reserve interest-rate hike. The dollar extended its gains. Yields on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note rose as high as three basis points to 5.02%, the highest level since 2007. Weighing on sentiment, Brent climbed 1.6% to about US$107.30 a barrel as traders weighed risks to Middle East supplies, with a critical Saudi Arabian pipeline still offline after attacks. Rising oil prices and the selloff in Treasuries sent Asian bonds lower. Elsewhere, Asian stocks slipped 0.6% after chip shares declined globally on Monday following a warning from leading artificial intelligence companies. US equity-index futures dipped 0.2%, while Europe was set for a tepid open.

Namibia ranks second globally for renewable energy growth. Namibia has been ranked second among the world's fastest-growing renewable energy markets, driven largely by the rapid expansion of solar power, according to an analysis by the World Resources Institute (WRI). The analysis, updated in August 2026, places Namibia alongside Uruguay, the Netherlands and Denmark among countries that have come closest to achieving the pace of solar and wind growth required globally. The assessment measures the rate at which countries have increased the share of solar and wind in their electricity generation rather than their total installed renewable energy capacity. According to WRI, Uruguay, Namibia, the Netherlands and Denmark have achieved about three-quarters of the annual global growth rate required between 2025 and 2030. – The Brief

Zimbabwe says single-currency switch hinges on market conditions. Zimbabwe's transition to a single currency will be driven by market conditions and macroeconomic stability, rather than a fixed timetable, central bank Governor John Mushayavanhu said. The southern African country had initially set 2030 as the deadline to phase out the domestic use of dollars and make its gold-backed ZiG its only currency.
