Paladin to keep Langer Heinrich operational during November kiln shutdown. Paladin Energy will keep its Langer Heinrich uranium mine in Namibia operational during a planned kiln shutdown in the second half of November, as the company works to improve production and recovery rates following operational challenges in the September 2026 quarter. The Australian uranium producer said the shutdown will primarily affect the kiln used to dry uranium concentrate before packaging, while the rest of the processing plant will continue operating. Paladin Chief Operating Officer Scott Barber said the company would build up in-process uranium inventory during the shutdown to support production once the kiln resumes operations. – Mining & Energy

Namibia's luxury lodges record brisk business as occupancy tops 83%. Namibia's luxury and high-end accommodation establishments recorded brisk business during the third quarter of 2026, with tented lodges achieving an occupancy rate of 83.71%, according to the Hospitality Association of Namibia (HAN). The strong performance comes despite concerns over a possible decline in overall tourist arrivals, as demand for premium accommodation and experience-based tourism continues to support the hospitality industry. HAN's latest statistics show that bed-and-breakfast establishments recorded occupancy of 77.13%, followed by rest camps at 73.56%, while self-catering establishments recorded occupancy rate at 12.19%. – The Brief

Govt moves to tighten laws against illegal sand mining. The government is drafting new regulations to introduce stricter controls and penalties for illegal sand and gravel extraction as authorities struggle to enforce environmental laws against unregulated mining activities across Namibia. Environment, Forestry and Tourism Minister Indileni Daniel said the absence of specific regulations governing sand and gravel extraction had made it difficult to prosecute offenders and hold operators accountable for environmental damage. Speaking in Parliament, Daniel said the proposed regulations would establish clearer requirements for environmental clearance certificates, permits, site management, rehabilitation and compliance monitoring. – Mining & Energy

Debmarmine lifts diamond output. Namibia's diamond production rose 8% year on year in the third quarter but remained below the previous quarter's level as stronger off-shore output at Debmarmine Namibia failed to fully offset weaker production earlier in the year. De Beers' Namibian operations recovered 495,000 carats in the three months to September, compared with 457,000 carats a year earlier. Output was 7% lower than the 531,000 carats recorded in the second quarter. The improvement was driven by Debmarmine Namibia, which recovered 366,000 carats, up 21% from 303 000 carats in the third quarter of 2025. Production was, however, 1% lower than in the preceding quarter. Namdeb's land operations produced 129,000 carats, down 16% year on year and 20% quarter on quarter. The off-shore rebound has narrowed, but not erased, Namibia's cumulative production shortfall. – Market Watch

Commentary on Previous Auction:

This morning's government bond auction, at which the BoN offered N$2.04bn to fund coupon payments, attracted strong demand. The BoN received bids totalling N$4.18bn across the GCs and GIs, an overall bid-to-offer ratio of 2.05x. This was an improvement on July's auction, which offered more (N$2.20bn) but drew fewer bids (N$3.95bn), a ratio of 1.80x. The seasonal bonds (GC30, GC32 and GC35), which returned to the auction today, attracted strong interest. The GC35 drew bids of N$508.9m, while the GC30 recorded the highest bid-to-offer ratio of the auction at 4.82x. As expected, demand was concentrated in the short- to medium-dated bonds (GC29 to GC40), which accounted for more than half of total bids. Further along the curve, the GC43 (1.31x), GC45 (1.29x) and GC48 (1.09x) were also oversubscribed, while the GC50 (0.60x) and GC53 (0.68x) were undersubscribed.
